TWO GRAND BANQUETS AT NIGHT

Under skies that smiled with all the softness of June Louisville's citizens of Irish birth, Irish descent and Irish sympathies celebrated in joyous and appropriate manner the anniversary of good St. Patrick, Ireland's patron saint. Because the feast fell this year on Sunday the faithful had a good excuse to spread it all over three days, and they did it. All over the city green flags with the harp were displayed, and many persons wore the real shamrocks, sent over for the occasion by loving relatives or friends in Ireland.

The opening celebration was the annual banquet of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, held in the banquet room of the Seelbach Hotel on Saturday evening. President P. H. Callahan was the toastmaster, and the society had for its guest Dr. Thomas P. Hart, of Cincinnati, whose recitation of Irish poems was the event of the evening, while the addresses of Thomas Walsh and Joseph Conkling were considered the equal of any St. Patrick's day orations ever delivered in this city. The following poem was prepared for the occasion:

Dear Erin, sweet Erin, our green little island.

Once more we have come with harp, timbrel and song,
Once more we have gathered from lowland and highland Thy psalms to sound and thy fame to prolong.
Once more we shall sing of thy glories of olden,
Of scenes that are past, of years that are gone,
Or open the future in vistas as golden
As light we behold on thy mountains at dawn.

We'll weave you a song of the rainbows of heaven,
Of laughter and tears and of sunshine and rain,
Or lights that appear on the tempest at even
That shine for a moment, then vanish again.

We'll fill its refrain with those memories tender.

An exile may feel on some desolate strand
When sitting alone in the evening's splendor,
Heartbroken he sings of his own native land.

This society has been in existence since Revolutionary days, and its annual dinners in the principal cities of the United States are events of the year for the Irish-American people.

Never did a fairer day dawn than Sunday proved itself, and at an early hour hundreds of men wearing green and inspired by Hibernian traditions were seen making their way to St. William's church, at Thirteenth and Oak streets, to attend mass and receive their annual holy communion. Long before the hour the sidewalks about the church were thronged with men who later filled the pretty church to the doors. In his sermon the pastor, Rev. Denis Murphy, extended the visitors a most hearty welcome. As nearly all present were fasting Father Murphy's sermon was brief, but in it he pointed out the duty of the true Hibernian and impressed his hearers with truths they should ever remember. The Hibernians expressed themselves grateful to the good priest and his people for the cordial reception and kind treatment received.

During the many years of its existence St. Patrick's church never witnessed a more brilliant or more impressive observance in honor of its patron saint than that last Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The historic edifice could scarcely hold the people that wished to do honor to St. Patrick. The enlarged choir rendered a special programme that concluded with a number of Irish national airs that were very pleasing to the throngs that filled the church. The pontifical high mass was sung by Vicar General Cronin, assisted by deacon and sub-deacon. Right Rev. Bishop McCloskey graced the occasion with his presence, and within the sanctuary were seated all the priests who could possibly get there. Truly the scene was an inspiring one, recalling old and creating new memories that will never be forgotten. Rev. Henry Miller, C. P., preached the sermon, paying a tribute to St. Patrick and the Irish people that could not be surpassed. Father Miller is one of the most eloquent preachers in the Passionist order, and last Sunday he added to his reputation. Immediately after the services Father Cronin entertained at dinner in honor of the Bishop and visiting clergy.

The climax to the happy day was brought about at the Hibernian banquet at the Clayton Hotel Sunday night. Never before in the history of the order in this city was there as enjoyable and pleasing an event as this proved to be. Messrs. Seelbach and Secor had every detail perfected and the service gave the utmost satisfaction. Each guest received beautiful souvenir menu card and a green flag bearing the harp and shamrock in gold. Following is the menu:

Blue Points
Consomme
Celery
Fried Jack Salmon, Tartar Sauce
Chicken Croquettes Supreme
Green Peas
Roast Wild Duck, Currant Jelly
Browned New Potatoes
Asparagus, Butter Sauce
Lettuce and Tomato Salad
Ice Cream
Assorted Cake
Cheese
Cigars

County President John A. Murphy acted as toastmaster and in introducing the speakers said they were assembled to perform the pleasant duty of honoring the patron saint of the Ancient Order and apostle of Ireland, Adlerville George Butler, Attorney Thomas Walsh, Thomas Keenan, Magistrate Patrick T. Sullivan, William T. McNeil, Thomas Quinn, James Coleman and Martin Cusick responded to the toasts and genial Tom Dolan had some good stories that convulsed the assemblage. The speakers were gratified to see so many at the festive board and hoped the banquet would occur annually. It was such occasions that bring all together for intellectual and social benefits that reflect credit on the race and order. The splendid traditions and memories of Ireland's past, the patriotic spirit of the race and what it owed glorious St. Patrick, the untold good the A. O. H. has done and is now doing, the intelligence and honesty of the Irish people, all were brought out with force. How grand said one speaker, if when the evening of life comes to us we have followed truly St. Patrick and can then at death enjoy with him the fruits of the faith he has left us.

Over in Jeffersonville the closing event took place Monday night, when the Irish and their friends filled Speith's Theater to witness the performance of the Hibernian Dramatic Club.

ALL ROT.

Times Gives Forth Another Fake Story About Coadjutor.

The Louisville Times has given out another story concerning the appointment of a coadjutor to the Right Rev. William George McCloskey, Bishop of Louisville. That paper says it learned "from a reliable source" that the Very Rev. John P. Farrelly, D. D., now spiritual director of the American College in Rome, is to be appointed by Pope Pius X. coadjutor of the diocese of Louisville. The appointment will probably be made in the right of succession."

The Hibernian Dramatic Club presented the laughable farce comedy, "She Would Be a Widow," and the work showed careful training and study. There were seventeen characters, and so well was each part taken that it would not be just to particularize. Upon all sides were heard words of praise, and in appreciation the young ladies were showered with flowers. Young Jack Murphy, John Kennedy, Will Gerrity, J. E. Murphy and Will Lally had a splendid conception of their parts and kept the audience in a continuous roar. Misses Mae Coleraine, Regina Constantine, Mary Gilhooly, Zivila Youse and Clementine Brooks were all chic and pretty and easily carried off the honors. Messrs. Leo Keister and William Hindey had little to do but did it well. Taken altogether the performance was most creditable and is worthy of presentation on any stage. The club has been solicited to repeat the performance, and may soon appear for the benefit of the division in New Albany.

HOLY FATHER

Promises Heartfelt Greeting For President Roosevelt's Sister.

Pope Pius X. on St. Patrick's day received in private audience the Right Rev. Thomas O'Gorman, Bishop of Sioux Falls, S. D., which is in the archdiocese of St. Paul. During the coneration Pope Pius said that Archbishop Ireland's discourse last December on "Church and State in France" was a strong presentation of the Franco-Vatican conflict. "Although I knew it caused some displeasure," His Holiness said, "Archbishop Ireland was correct as to the remote causes of the conflict when he said that the French clergy and leading Catholics failed by not following the advice of my illustrious predecessor."

His Holiness asked Mgr. O'Gorman about President Roosevelt, and expressed pleasure to hear that he was satisfied with the solution of the Philippine question. He also requested Mgr. O'Gorman to present his regards to President Roosevelt. The Bishop informed Pope Pius that Mrs. Douglas Robinson, of New York, sister of President Roosevelt, would arrive in Rome during holy week, and requested His Holiness to receive her. The Pontiff answered: "Naturally I shall be delighted. All doors shall be open to her."

COLORED PEOPLE'S MISSION.

Rev. Francis Feiten, pastor of St. Augustine's church for colored people, Fourteenth and Broadway, has secured the noted Redemptorist, Rev. Father Thomas Fagan, who will conduct a mission for the people of the congregation. The mission will begin at the high mass Easter morning and will close on Low Sunday. During the week the hours for morning services are 5 and 8 o'clock, with mass and instruction. Sunday evening and every evening during the week the services at 7:45 will consist of rosary, sermon and benediction. Confessions will be heard before the masses each morning and from 2:30 to 5:30 in the afternoon and after the evening services.

HER SAD END.

Mrs. Rebecca Graves Stricken With Paralysis Last Week.

Mrs. Rebecca Graves, forty-eight years old and residing at 1006 East Jefferson street, suffered a stroke of paralysis on Thursday of last week that resulted in her death Tuesday morning. Mrs. Graves had left her home to visit a friend and was waiting for a car at Clay and Market streets when she was stricken and fell to the ground unconscious. She was at once removed to her home, where everything possible was done in the effort to revive her, but all without avail, as she failed to rally and continually grew worse until the end came Tuesday morning, when she passed peacefully away surrounded by her children. Mrs. Graves had lived all her life in Louisville and was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances, who are deeply grieved at her unexpected death. She is survived by two sons, William and George Graves, and four daughters, Misses Hazel, Jessie, John and Mary Graves. The funeral was held Thursday morning from St. Joseph's church, of which deceased had been a lifelong and useful member.

JEFFERSONVILLE

Hibernians Dramatic Club's Performance a Great Success.

A noteworthy observance in honor of Ireland's patron saint and national holiday was the entertainment given by the Hibernian Dramatic Club in Jeffersonville under the auspices of Division 1 and directed by Henry W. Newman, of Louisville. Speith's Theater was taxed to its utmost capacity, but the Irish spirit prevailed and all were in good humor. Preceding the performance the orchestra played popular Irish airs that aroused much enthusiasm, and the solos between the sets by Miss Mae Coleraine, Miss Margaret Constantine and Miss Clementine Brooks were so well received that they had to respond several times to the encores.

The Hibernian Dramatic Club presented the laughable farce comedy, "She Would Be a Widow," and the work showed careful training and study. There were seventeen characters, and so well was each part taken that it would not be just to particularize. Upon all sides were heard words of praise, and in appreciation the young ladies were showered with flowers. Young Jack

Murphy, John Kennedy, Will Gerrity, J. E. Murphy and Will Lally had a splendid conception of their parts and kept the audience in a continuous roar. Misses Mae Coleraine, Regina Constantine, Mary Gilhooly, Zivila Youse and Clementine Brooks were all chic and pretty and easily carried off the honors. Messrs. Leo Keister and William Hindey had little to do but did it well. Taken altogether the performance was most creditable and is worthy of presentation on any stage. The club has been solicited to repeat the performance, and may soon appear for the benefit of the division in New Albany.

GRIEF HASTENED DEATH.

The death of Mrs. Susan Lincoln at an early hour Wednesday morning caused a feeling of deep gloom among her wide circle of friends and acquaintances, although not altogether unexpected. Mrs. Lincoln was seventy years of age, and it is thought the almost unbearable sorrow occasioned by the death of three daughters, Misses Kate and Nellie Lincoln and Mrs. Bettie Flanagan, all within a year, hastened the end. Mrs. Lincoln was the widow of the late Pierce Lincoln and was one of the best known and most respected Catholic women in Louisville. She was a devout member of her church and always a liberal giver to charity. She survived her two daughters and three sons, all of whom lived here. Her funeral took place Friday morning from St. Patrick's church with a solemn high mass of requiem after which a long cortage of mourning friends accompanied the remains to St. John's cemetery, where they were laid to rest beside those of her husband and children.

SHAMROCKS FROM IRELAND.

From Erin's soil came shamrocks for John E. Browne and William M. Higgins, St. Patrick's day tokens, sent by Patrick Casey, of Muckrussaune, County Mayo, which were greatly appreciated and distributed among their friends. Mr. Browne was also the recipient of a beautiful harp and shamrock, the gift of Thomas Woulfe, of Athos, County Limerick. They were hand-worked and very artistic.

MEMORIAL.

Tribute of Friendly Sons of St.
Patrick to Commodore Barry.

Bronze Statue Unveiled at Philadelphi by Great-Great Grandniece.

Glowing Eulogy of Founder of the American Navy by Gen. Stewart.

FAMOUS IRISH NAVAL HERO HONORED

that left an impress upon its time, had or has its battlefields and its heroes, and we have ours, and we today pay tribute to one of our heroes. The tribute may seem tardy, paid, for he for whom this tribute is placed has been resting peacefully in his grave near this spot for more than a hundred years. Generations of men have come and gone since he lived, and though his bones are dust and his sword is rust, he still has a place in the affections and love of his countrymen, and this great city, where he lived and died, counts him among those of cherished memory, and cheerfully and gladly accords his statue a place within the holiest and most sacred plot of earth within her gates.

And now, on behalf of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, the successors of John Barry and his associates, I have the honor to present to the City of Philadelphia, through its honored Chief Executive, in the presence of its Common and Select Councils, in the presence of these representatives of the United States navy and army, and in the presence of this goodly assemblage of the citizenship of the patriotic city of Philadelphia, this statue of Commodore John Barry.

Mayor Weaver is accepting the statue on behalf of the city, the orphan asylum and other valuable church property was destroyed. The building most necessary were rebuilt, and a plain brick chapel was secured for divine services, entailing a heavy debt upon the city. At the close of the war Bishop Lynch, then presiding over the diocese, impressed with the superior obligation of paying this debt, devoted the remainder of his life to this great task. He died, however, before his devoted work was accomplished.

Bishop Scanlan expects that the dedication of St. Mary's Cathedral at Salt Lake City will take place early in July, the altars being now ready to be put in position. There are to be three of these, and the largest, or central altar will be entirely of marble and will represent a cost of $12,000. An organ, also costing more than $12,000, is to be installed. When entirely finished the Cathedral will have cost more than $300,000. Besides a distinct addition to the architectural beauty of that city, it will occupy a place high among great church edifices of the country. The two towers when completed will reach a maximum height of 220 feet. This magnificent edifice is 200x160 feet, with ceiling sixty-four feet high and the auditorium having a seating capacity of 1,200 persons. The Cathedral has been under six years in building.

Rev. Gerald P. Coghlan, rector of the Church of Our Lady of Mercy, pronounced the benediction, after which the crowds in the park filled by the monument in order to obtain a near view of it and later in the afternoon many hundreds visited Barry's tomb in the graveyard of St. Mary's church, on Fourth street.

The bronze figure of Commodore Barry is of solid bronze and was cast at a cost of $10,000. From the base of the statue it rises nine feet six inches above the eleven feet six inches of granite pedestal. The Revolutionary hero is shown with outstretched arm directing the men of his command. Under his arm he carries a spyglass. A seaman's great coat envelopes the figure. Around the neck is the Order of the Cincinnati which was given to the Commodore by President Washington. Commodore Barry was one of the early members of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

JOHN O'LEARY DEAD.

Fenian Writer Who Was Prominent in Young Ireland Movement.

Associated Press dispatches announce the death of John O'Leary, the noted Irish litterateur, which occurred in Dublin last Monday.

Born in Tipperary in 1830, John O'Leary took a prominent part in the Young Ireland movement and became a prominent Fenian. He edited the Fenian paper, "The Irish People," until it was suppressed in 1865, and he was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment. He was released from jail in 1870, but spent the balance of his sentence in exile. He returned to Dublin and had devoted his time ever since to literature. He had written several books on Ireland, and had always taken a keen interest in the work and welfare of young Irish writers. He was known to some of the older Irish residents of this city, among them Jeremiah Kavanaugh and the late Patrick Bannon.

This statue is the fitting and grateful tribute of the society, to one of its members, and to a noble and faithful patriot and officer of the American navy in the formative and fateful days of the great nation, a nation whose commission and confidence he enjoyed, whose sword he carried, and for whose glory he fought more than a century ago. The infant navy, of which John Barry was designated by Washington as the senior captain, and of which he was the first commodore, today demands the respect of every nation in the world. It has grown great and strong through more than a century of magnificent achievements and deeds of valor and heroism.

From Commodore John Barry to Admiral George Dewey the American navy has given to the naval annals of the world a great host of conspicuous and mighty names, and among these names, shining in brilliancy of achievement, loyalty and unsurpassed bravery, are found those who either by birth or lineage or of that race whose sons have written in blood the story of Irish courage and devotion wherever the war-day banners of this republic were unfurled in battle, or where, amid the carnage of mighty conflict, brave men sank unscathed to their resting place in the gardens of the sea.

Here, under the shadow of Independence Hall, the Cradle of Liberty, is the fitting place to rear this tribute to one of that galaxy of great men who made way for liberty, and who steeled the steps of the infant republic which today sits enthroned among the nations of the earth, all of whom pay tribute to her in high, acknowledge her greatness and salute her flag. The faith the founders pledged, we have kept; the glory they hoped for, we have won; the institutions they created, we have saved, and transmit unimpaired to the generations that shall follow us.

Within sight of this spot the first Constitutional Congress met and here was given to the world the sublime Declaration of Independence, that from the day it was first publicly proclaimed by being read in public by Col. John Nixon, the son of an Irishman, to this day, has been recognized as the greatest document ever conceived by man, or written by pen of man. In support of that Declaration, a young Irishman, thirty-one years of age, John Barry, to use his own language, "abandoned the finest ship and the first employ in America," and offered his service, and it need be of his life.

Every nation, or people, or race, remained indoors during last week and is rapidly recovering from a severe cold. Though His Grace's condition was not such as to compel his abstention from his ordinary duties, his advanced age and the danger involved in exposure to the weather rendered advisable the cancellation of several engagements calling for the Archibishop's public appearance during the past week and in the near future.

WONDERFUL

Has Been the Growth of St.
Cecilia's During Thirty-
Three Years.

When Dedicated the Congregation Contained Twenty-Five Families.

Will Soon Erect One of the Finest Churches in This Diocese.

BAZAR WILL OPEN EASTER MONDAY

Few churches in this country can boast as wonderful and substantial a growth as that of St. Cecilia's in Portland. The parish was founded in the early seventies, and when the present church was dedicated in 1873 the congregation consisted of but twenty-five families, which has increased until today the number is nearly 300, and the church is therefore much too small for their needs. St. Cecilia's church was dedicated in 1873, Rev. Father Feeney being the first pastor. Successing him came the Rev. P. M. J. Rock, now of the Cathedral, under whose administration was laid the foundation for the steady growth that has since continued. When Father Rock was called to a wider field the Passionist fathers were placed in charge, but only for a short time, they being followed by Fathers McConnell and McHenry and the beloved Rev. William Mackin, who passed to his eternal reward in 1893.

The Rev. Andrew J. Brady, the present pious and zealous pastor, was appointed by Bishop McCloskey to the charge of St. Cecilia's in 1893, and from the first to the present that indefatigable priest has continued with marked success the work of his predecessors. When Father Brady took charge he was confronted with a church debt of $17,000, inadequate school facilities and a needed parish house. With that business tact that has characterized all his undertakings Father Brady set to work, first providing a school for the children and then remodeling the church to meet the needs of its increasing number of communicants. But notwithstanding these great responsibilities he never lost sight of the church debt, which was being constantly reduced. This policy continued until a few years ago, when Father Brady surprised his people with the welcome announcement that the school debt, the parish house debt and the church debt had been paid and St. Cecilia's was free and unencumbered.

Then after a year's rest the pastor and people got together and formed the St. Cecilia's Church Building Association, of which Alderman George Butler is the President. A canvass of the parish showed that there were nearly 300 Catholic families within its confines and that over 600 children were attending the parochial school. Meetings were held and arrangements completed for the raising of a building fund. The people all became interested, and so generous have they been that already a sum approximating $3,000 has been secured with which to begin the erection of a new church that will be one of the finest in the diocese and monument to Father Brady and his people.

For the purpose of adding to the building fund the congregation will give a week's bazaar in the school hall, beginning Easter Monday night, that it is hoped will eclipse any here-to Congressman James F. Bourke, of Pittsburgh, in his address before the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in Philadelphia, spoke significantly when he said:

"That writer uttered a great truth who two centuries ago declared that while the Greeks were a great people and boasted many heroes, their place in history would not be half as illustrious were it not for the fact that they possessed many brilliant writers who successfully exploited on the pages of history the achievements of their people. And so, with the early history of the Irish people in this country. Owing more to the men who wrote than to the men who made our early history, we find many achievements attributed to other nationalities and comparatively few accredited to the Germans and the Irish. The significant part played by them in transforming the results of those events into the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution is impressed upon us with added force the more we scrutinize the story of their struggles and sacrifices."

The time is coming when the Germans and Irish will demand and receive that place in our history to which they are so justly entitled.

THEY WANT JUDGE GRAY.

Another than William Jennings Bryan is looming up, and the Nebraskan is threatened with a strong competitor from the East. From Ashland comes the news that the five anthracite counties of Pennsylvania are about to lead off in booming Judge George Gray, of Delaware, for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency. Business men, organized into Boards of Trade and civic societies, are to join hands with the United Mine Workers and other labor unions in an endeavor to place in supreme authority in the nation the man who formulated the plan which has brought years of industrial peace and the greatest prosperity ever known to the anthracite coal region.

A canvass has already shown that more than four-fifths of the Democratic committeemen in the counties of Schuylkill, Northumberland, Luzerne, Lackawanna and Wayne favor Judge Gray, and the newspapers are practically unanimous in their support. The kindness Judge Gray displayed in that region as the Chairman of the Coal Strike Commission has taken a deep hold on the miners—particularly the soleilite he developed for the child slaves of the mines, many of whose names were taken by the Judge, who has not forgotten to send them useful Christmas gifts every year since then.

THE LAND ACT.

The land purchase act of 1902 is gradually placing the people of Ireland in permanent possession of the soil, just as the Ashbourne act of 1896 rooted several thousands of families on it who at the end of twenty to twenty-five years from now will be practically owners in fee simple.

Doubtless some tenants who bought under the act of 1902 have paid too big a price for the land, made a bad bargain, although the Irish leaders and the national press warned and cautioned them over and over again, but the land hunger was so intense among them that they will possibly be obliged to suffer for their improvident bargains. Some people make bad bargains buying land or other things in America. But after all is said and done it is a clear fact that on every estate bought by the tenants the yearly instalment toward the purchase price will be anywhere from twenty-five to sixty or seventy per cent, less than the old rent. If they improve the house or farm, the improvement is theirs.

In other respects, declares the Boston Hibernian, Ireland has made substantial progress. Their present system of local, district and county government, which is carried on by elected councils, is equal if not superior to local governments in the counties of any American State. These Irish councils have the levying and collection of taxes for local purposes and the appointment of salaried officials to carry out local purposes. Under this power the County Council of Cork elected no other than O'Donovan Rossa, of New York, to a salaried office, which he filled for a time until he grew tired of life in his new surroundings. But that broad democratic power has been granted to Ireland within the past decade, and what is more, Irishmen are allowed to vote for members of the district councils and to serve as members and some of the most active and efficient members on such councils are well known Irishmen. So that it is not all darkness and desolation in the cradle-land of the race. There are several unmistakable signs and glimpses of the sunrise.

It has been well said that Commodore Barry was an amphibious fighter. Born in Ireland, he fought England by preference upon the sea, because he was a sailor, but when anything interfered with fighting on the water, the land was good enough.

In February, 1776, he made the first capture of a British war vessel by an American cruiser, but when navigation was closed he commanded a company of artillery and did good work around Trenton. Then he took to the water with four boatsloads of men and cut out a British war schooner.

Returning to the land, he served as an aide on the staff of Gen. Washington, but presently got back to his own element and in October, 1781, he captured the Atalanta and the Treasury after a very hard fight. In the reorganization of the navy in 1789 he was the senior officer. All Americans feel grateful to the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick for erecting a statue of him, which is well placed near the hall immortalized by that Declaration of Independence for which he fought so well.

During the past few days several of the older generation of Irishmen were heard to commend the Ancient Order of Hibernians for their loyalty to St. Patrick, whom they never fail to honor on March 17. They and all approved the religious observance and the banquet that has taken place here, but were inclined to criticize the younger generation for their falling off in enthusiasm. Years ago, they said, St. Patrick's day was a semi-holiday in Louisville, and the Irish people joined in big celebration that occupied a commanding place in the public eye. They had parades that gave the Irish prestige and banquets attended by all nationalities, with speeches by the most noted men of the day. This is all true, and when next year the annuals vary in another day than Sunday they may see a public demonstration that will gratify them.

Miss Madeline Kremer, the interesting daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Kremer, is able to be out again, having recovered from a severe illness of typhoid fever.

All who know Clint McClarty, Jr., will rejoice to know that his condition is greatly improved and that he will soon have entirely recovered from his illness of typhoid fever.

Officer John Heinzman, for the past seven weeks ill with typhoid fever, is now improving rapidly and will soon be able to return to his post as stationkeeper at the Central station.

Miss Norma Cain, of Deer Park, has had as her guest for the past week Miss Martha Lehman, a pretty and popular girl, who came here to spend St. Patrick's day and attend the exposition.

Thomas Tevlin, a popular member of Mackin Council, who was last week removed to his home, 2342 St. Cecilia street, after a nine weeks' illness of typhoid pneumonia, is out again and will soon be able to return to his position.

Robert Gleason, a superintendent in the Frankfort penitentiary, returned to his old home in Jeffersonville to spend St. Patrick's day and witness the entertainment given by the Hibernians, of which body he was so long the President.

J. Brunn, the well known Market street jeweler, has gone to Mt. Clemens, Mich., to seek relief from an attack of rheumatism from which he has been a sufferer for several weeks. His friends hope for his speedy recovery and return home.

Miss Mary Fischer, who was expected to return from St. Mary's College at Knoxville, Tenn., to spend the Easter holidays with relatives in the Highlands, has decided to remain at school and will not be home until after the annual commencement.

There is great rejoicing in the Leahy home, 505 East Broadway, where the stock has had a lovely baby girl. Father William is as proud as can be and declares the little one "the fairest ever." Father and mother are receiving congratulatory messages upon all sides.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Helfrich and Miss Hattie Madlung entertained at their home on West Spring street, New Albany, Sunday evening with a St. Patrick's day party. The house was decorated in green and white, those colors being carried out in the refreshments, and appropriate souvenirs of the day were given.

The total immigration to the United States during the month of January was 54,17, an increase of 3,200 over last year. Of this number 240 were from Ireland, against 448 last year.

During the year 1906 there were 674 persons, including employees, killed on the electric lines of this country, and 2,932 injured. Two hundred and nine were killed by automobiles and 831 injured.

Officer John Heinzman, for the past seven weeks ill with typhoid fever, is now improving rapidly and will soon be able to return to his post as stationkeeper at the Central station.

Miss Norma Cain, of Deer Park, has had as her guest for the past week Miss Martha Lehman, a pretty and popular girl, who came here to spend St. Patrick's day and attend the exposition.

Thomas Tevlin, a popular member of Mackin Council, who was last week removed to his home, 2342 St. Cecilia street, after a nine weeks' illness of typhoid pneumonia, is out again and will soon be able to return to his position.

Robert Gleason, a superintendent in the Frankfort penitentiary, returned to his old home in Jeffersonville to spend St. Patrick's day and witness the entertainment given by the Hibernians, of which body he was so long the President.

J. Brunn, the well known Market street jeweler, has gone to Mt. Clemens, Mich., to seek relief from an attack of rheumatism from which he has been a sufferer for several weeks. His friends hope for his speedy recovery and return home.

Miss Mary Fischer, who was expected to return from St. Mary's College at Knoxville, Tenn., to spend the Easter holidays with relatives in the Highlands, has decided to remain at school and will not be home until after the annual commencement.

There is great rejoicing in the Leahy home, 505 East Broadway, where the stock has had a lovely baby girl. Father William is as proud as can be and declares the little one "the fairest ever." Father and mother are receiving congratulatory messages upon all sides.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Helfrich and Miss Hattie Madlung entertained at their home on West Spring street, New Albany, Sunday evening with a St. Patrick's day party. The house was decorated in green and white, those colors being carried out in the refreshments, and appropriate souvenirs of the day were given.

The total immigration to the United States during the month of January was 54,17, an increase of 3,200 over last year. Of this number 240 were from Ireland, against 448 last year.

During the year 1906 there were 674 persons, including employees, killed on the electric lines of this country, and 2,932 injured. Two hundred and nine were killed by automobiles and 831 injured.

In the United States the amount of per capita spent is about thirty-five cents for military and $1.40 for education, and in England about $3.75 for military and eighty cents for education.

Grover Cleveland, the only living ex-President of the United States, last Monday celebrated in a quiet and unostentatious manner the seventieth anniversary of his birth.

In Victoria, Australia, the children are carried to and from school on electric cars free of charge.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

True to its faith and herland with pious, zealous care,
And in that constancy and love
where virtue has its share,
The Irish heart, where'er it beats, at home or far away,
Expands with joy as morning breaks
to hail St. Patrick's day, its advent truly chronicles the glory of the Gael.

Since the banner of the cross was raised in happy Innisfail;
Since the light of our enduring faith
illumed her pagan sky,
When Erin, faithful Erin, knelt to worship God on high, Behold her in the Springtime of a blooming, golden age!

The hope of nations, then unknown,
writ in her virgin page;
Her mission sketched by Providence—
in Christian robes array'd,
She preach'd with burning eloquence,
the cross of her crusade,
And then we see her seated on a throne of blazing light,

Resplendent in her mission like the vernal moon at night;
A crown of learning on her brow, the erect; her crest;
Her monasteries and colleges the glory of the West,
Her holy men and women sought new fields in ev'ry land,

Whereto to plant the tree of life to blossom and expand; Spreading hope and consolation
around them on their way;
Teaching liberty and progress where they went or came to stay.

What precious fruits were gathered in the vineyards they had till'd!
What richly laden granaries with golden grain were fill'd!
While flocks redeem'd from slavery
were nurtured in the fold,
By those faithful shepherds of the cross by whom they were console'd,

What a glorious mission, Erin, for ages has been thine!
And still goes onward, Erin, with no
semblance of decline;
Still preaching and professing; still dispensing, far and wide,
That charity and peace and love for which the Saviour died,

And in that sacred mission, Holy Island of the Sea!
They children, scattered o'er the earth, preserve their faith in thee;

That faith, which knows no waning,
seeks a home beyond the sides,
Where, when human thrones have crumbled, the immortal soul shall rise.

RECENT DEATHS.

With profound sorrow was received news of the death of Mrs. Mary A.
Waterman, aged thirty-six years, last Saturday. She was the wife of William Waterman, 1712 Owen street, and passed away just when home and life were most desired. Her funeral took place Wednesday morning from St.
Patrick's church, of which she was a devout member.

Mrs. Dora Cain, a most estimable model of a Christian mother, passed away Tuesday morning at her home, 709 Florence Place, after a lingering illness of dyspepsia. She was the widow of Patrick Cain, and leaves a son, John Cain, with the L. & N., and a daughter, Mrs. Brown. Her funeral was held Thursday morning from St.
Louis Bertrand's church.

Monday morning death's summons came to William Noone, son of Thomas and the late Mary Noone, 1823 Lytle street. His demise came as a shock to his friends and acquaintances and for the bereaved father there is most profound sympathy. The funeral took place Wednesday morning from St. Patrick's church, the interment being in St. Louis Bertrand's church.

The funeral of Henry Becker, for nearly fifty years a resident of this city and one of the most faithful members of St. Anthony's church, took place Wednesday morning with a high mass of requiem. Deceased was sixty-nine years old and a native of Germany. He is survived by two daughters and seven sons, all of whom reside here and were with him
when the end came.

Richard Lehman, a well known and prosperous farmed living near Jeffer-sonstown, was called to his eternal reward Tuesday night. He was a native of County Cork, Ireland, but for many years had been a resident of Kentucky. Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Ellen Lehman, and one son, Daniel Lehman. The remains were brought to Doughtery & McEllott's and the funeral services were held at St. Louis Bertrand's church Thursday morning.

Andrew Nichol, aged sixty-nine years and a pioneer member of the Cathedral congregation, died Tuesday morning at his home, 730 Fifth street, after a short illness, the aged wife being the only survivor. For many years Mr. Nichol was a factor in the business life of Louisville, but retired on a competency on account of his advanced age. He was honored and respected throughout the city,
and to all charitable donations liberally,
Thursday morning the funeral services were held at the Cathedral, being largely attended by old friends and acquaintances.

Paralysis claimed for its victim
Tuesday morning Mrs. Emma Ramp
Pfeiffer, mother of Robert Lee and Miss Alma Pfeiffer. Mrs. Pfeiffer suffered the fatal stroke Monday night at her home, 1413 Alta avenue, and though given every attention she never rallied. Deceased was born in this city fifty-three years ago, and was known for her piety and generous but unostentatious charity. Her funeral took place Thursday morning from St. Bridget's church, which was thronged with mourning friends when Rev. Father Connolly began the solemn mass of requiem for the rest of her soul.

By the death of Mrs. Jane Kirkup, beloved wife of John Kirkup, which occurred Wednesday morning, the Cathedral loses another of its older and most faithful members. Some time ago she suffered a stroke of paralysis, and to this was due her death. Mrs. Kirkup was a woman of many Christian virtues and was admired by all who had the good fortune to know her. She was the mother of Misses Jennie and Margaret Kirkup.

INVITED ARCHBISHOP QUILOGY.

Archbishop Quigley, of Chicago, was one of the number who were especially invited to be present at the reception on Monday, when the members of the Sacred College and other high dignitaries of the Church presented their greetings to the Pope
on the eve of his name day.

CONFERS HOLY ORDERS.

Archbishop Moeller, assisted by Right Rev. Mgr. Mackey, rector of the seminary, and by the members of the faculty, conferred deaconship on twenty-eight theologians of Mt. St.
Mary's Seminary at Cincinnati Saturday morning. Minor orders and the major order of subdiaconate were conferred the day before. Revs. B.
Roberts, F. Siebert, G. Meyer, G.
Menge, J. Contain, J. Burke, M.
Malloy and F. Varley will be ordained priests for the Cincinnati Archdiocese about June 21.

SENT SAD NEWS.

Tuesday the sad news was sent to
Mrs. Mary Cummings Lohmoeller, wife of George Lohmoeller, who had died at her home in Jefferson County, of pneumonia. Mrs. Lohmoeller was a woman of fine character and beloved by all who knew her. She is survived by her husband, two sisters living in Louisville, Mrs. J. B.
Koenig and Miss Annie Cummings, and by her father and another sister,
living in Gort, County Galway.

ONLY ONE ARM EACH.

James Daily, a well known one-armed Democrat and popular across the river, has declared his intention of seeking the Democratic nomination for Trustee in Jeffersonville township, the primary for which will not take place till the spring of 1908
and the election the November following.
Thomas Stradley, the Republican incumbent, also has but one arm.

DIGHT TO AWAKE.

Thomas Scally, the well known musician and State Factory Inspector, will again represent Louisville at the national convention of the American Federation of Musicians, to be held at Cleveland in May. This is the third time the local body has thus honored Mr. Scally, who has done much for the organization that has now a membership of nearly 50,000.

police department last week by the action of the Board of Safety have been filled by the appointment of the following: Daniel Bellamy, Robert Kent-
ing, Peter Tivnan, Edward Whallen, Herbert Malkin, Martin Connor,
John Zahel, John Rader and Frank Lorenz. All are good men and will make fine officers.The silk blouses or waists that are in style again are very often as intricate as though they were intended for a waist to match a skirt.

HER OLD AGE.

More than 150 descendants of Mrs.
Elizabeth Hazleton called on her Sunday night at the home of her son-in-law, Charles Howe, No. 4717 Kingsbridge Avenue, Philadelphia, and joined in the celebration of the one hundred and second anniversary of her birth. Despite her advanced age, Mrs. Hazleton is in perfect health and carries her years lightly. She is able to read without the aid of glasses and keeps herself posted on current events.
Two years ago she had her first automobile ride, which she enjoyed very much. Mrs. Hazleton was born in the northern part of Ireland on March 17, 1805, and came to this country when she was thirty years of age.

LEXINGTON.

James Donohue, one of the best known policemen on the Lexington force and a highly respected citizen, died Monday night after an illness of less than a week of paralysis.
While repairing a folding bed at his home he was struck and fell unconscious to the floor. It was first thought Donohue had been knocked down by being struck on the head by the bed, but it was found he had been paralyzed. The unfortunate man was forty-five years old and is survived by a wife and three children.

SETTLED.

The strike of the street railway employees has been amicably settled and the best of feeling prevails. All is peaceful and harmonious and only minor details lack adjustment. The unin men have resumed their places, and it is now up to them to make good their representations and give the company the faithful and honest service their organization stands for.

WILL GO TO ROME.

The Right Rev. John J. Monaghan,
Bishop of Wilmington, Del., will leave early in April for a visit to Rome, and will return in June. Rev. Michael A. Murphy, pastor of St. Paul's church in Belpointe, will accompany him. Bishop Monaghan was consecrated ten years ago, and under his guidance the diocese has made steady and substantial progress.

REMEMBERED.

Jerenim Bacon, who has been spending the past two years touring the world, has not forgotten his Louisville friends. He is now in Porto Rico, and sent his Patrick's Day congratulations from San Juan.
From him the Kentucky Irish American received five pictures of the Governor's Palace and Casablanca.

SETS MARRIAGE TIME.

Last Sunday a pastoral letter from Right Rev. Bishop Morris was read in the churches throughout the diocese of Little Rock, prohibiting evening or night church marriages in the future. The Bishop inaugurates the rule requiring all Catholics to be married in the forenoon in order that the ceremony may be solemnized with sacred mass.

HIBERNIANS.

What They Have Been Doing
 the Past Week—General
 News Notes.

Four new divisions are being organized in Connecticut and will be instituted in the very near future.

Division 1 of New Britain, Conn., will hold a three nights bazaar in Hanna's Armory the first part of April.

There are three Hibernian total abstinenes divisions in the United States—one in Boston, one in Philadelphia and one in Brooklyn, Mass.

Division 1 of Hartford, Conn., will give a bazaar at the Auditorium in April, the capital prize offered being a free trip to the exposition in Ireland.

President McGinn looks for a big crowd Wednesday night at the meeting of Division 4, which will be held in the new hall in the Liederkranz building, Sixth and Walnut.

A pleasant feature of the St. Patrick's day observances by Division 12 of Malden, Mass., was the burning of the $8,000 mortgage note which was rested on their headquarters.

Division 8 and 12 of Springfield, Mass., each celebrated this week with its own banquet in honor of their national holiday. Clergy, city officials and State officers responded to toasts.

Next comes our Fourth of July celebration. The County Board can make this the event of the year for the people of Louisville and vicinity. Take this matter up and begin work at the next meeting.

All the divisions in Mercer County united in a body last Sunday evening and marched to the Church of the Sacred Heart in Trenton, N. J., where Rev. Theobald Hogan preached a special sermon for them.

Divisions throughout the Eastern States are getting ready for the organization of cadet corps—a step in the right direction, Kentucky should take this matter up and get the boys in line to take our places. County President Donnelly's consistent work has made Middlesex county, Mass., the banner district of the order. He presents a most remarkable report of the fifty-three divisions, representing 6,340 members.

The five divisions and the auxiliaries of Hartford, Conn., celebrated St. Patrick's day with a largely attended banquet at the Hotel Dom. Mayor Henney, Rev. Walter Shanley and Postmaster Hagerly were invited guests.

Division 1 will meet Tuesday night, and as final arrangements must be made for a division and removal of property the presence of every member is looked for. This meeting will have before it one of the most important questions of the year, in which all will vitally interested.

Philip F. Crowley, of Grand Rapids, Mich., has just organized a brass band consisting of twenty-four pieces, the members of which are all members of the local division of the Ancient Order. This band is believed to be the only one in the world outside of Ireland whose members are all Hibernians.

STRONG CLAIMS

For Lincoln Farm Boulevard
 Over Nelson County Route.

Judge John Kelly, of Bardstown, and Messrs. Sylvester Rapier and Frank Boone and Editor John Barry, of New Haven, spent some time here this week and appeared before the Fiscal Court on Tuesday advocating the Bardstown route for the proposed Lincoln farm boulevard. From Spencer county, advocating the same route, were Judge John Speed and Judge Hindler. The Nelson and Spencer representatives lay special stress on the advantage of their route because it runs right by a place where Lincoln and his family moved while a boy. There is also a view of the site of the school house where the great emancipator went to school. The ruins of the distillery where his father and mother were employed can be seen. All these points of interest are in Larue county. This is without doubt the best and

MACKIN COUNCIL

Decrease in Number of Members on the Sick List.

There was a fairly good attendance at the meeting of Mackin Council last Monday night, and the reports from the visiting committees gave a good feeling. All on the sick list were reported improving and four names were struck from therefrom. The event of the evening was the address of Prof. Vincent Falisi, who imparted some excellent advice for young men, many of whom are careless and with bad results. After the reading of communications and allowance of sick claims the committee preparing for the May open reported that interest and enthusiasm were increasing, and gave assurance that the production would be an artistic and pleasing success. Next Monday night the special order will be the revision of the by-laws, and as many changes are proposed President Sand wants all members present. This will be brought out their views and vote on all questions and a satisfactory result.

Record of the Most Important of the Recent Events Culled From Exchanges.

The annual collection for the Irish language has been fixed for Palm Sunday.

The tenants on the Hatton estate at Dunice have signed for the purchase of their holdings. There are thirteen tenants on the estate and all are satisfied with the terms.

The lifeless body of John Hallan, a laborer employed by Thomas Kelly at Lower Town, County Louth, was found lying along the track at a place known as Sheehan's ent. At the inquest there was no evidence as to how deceased met his death.

Damage estimated at $1,000 was caused by fire that broke out at night in the outbuildings attached to the residence of Justice Clibborn at Monte, County Westmeath. The occurrence is considered accidental and the damage is covered by insurance.

It is said to be stated on good authority that the new bill will give the administration of $32,000,000 of Irish taxation into the hands of the new authority, which will consist of a single chamber assembly in Dublin, of which a small proportion will be nominated by the Government.

It is reported that a rich lode of copper ore has been discovered near Altamore Mountains reservoir, seventeen miles from Dungannon. A correspondent states that when the contractor was cutting the mountain for the reservoir wall nodules of copper ore were found, and upon being tested produced nearly 80 per cent of pure ore.

The protest meeting in connection with the Crannagh land dispute at Ballina, County Mayo, was proclaimed, a force of a hundred police, under County Inspector Smith, being drawn up at the farm. Though much excitement prevailed the meeting was held at Ardagh, where the speakers declared the Crannagh lands must be purchased by the Estates Commissioners.

An incident of a melancholy character occurred a short distance from Cork, County Cork, resulting in the death of a man named Jeremiah Singletor, a groomsman in the employment of Dr. G. Bolster, J. P., of Springville. It appeared that Singletor had been engaged exercising a young horse when the animal suddenly became very restive, and began jumping violently. In one of its plunges the rider was thrown off. Though given immediate assistance his death quickly followed, resulting from fracture of the base of the skull.

The death of Very Rev. Canon L. Byrne at Portadown has occasioned deep sorrow not only among the people of that parish and throughout the archdiocese, but all over the North of Ireland wherever he was known, the deceased ecclesiastic having by the many fine qualities in his character and his kindly disposition gained for himself the most general esteem. Though it was well known for some little time that Canon Byrne was ill, the hope was constantly felt and expressed that he would recover, and it came somewhat as a shock to his faithful parishioners to learn of his demise.

The death of the Rev. Father Coghlan at Ballylooby caused profound sorrow throughout Waterford. The good priest had ministered in the parish of Lismore for twenty-one years and left many enduring monuments of his zeal. He was the devoted assistant of the late Right Rev. Monsignor Byrne during the years of his failing health and energy, and upon him developed many heavy duties, especially in connection with the completion of the beautiful parochial church, a monument at once to the devotion of the people, the zeal of their priests and the genius of the artist.

GET THE SAVING HABIT

We offer four special locations for investment in lots. Louisville property is increasing in every direction, but naturally some localities will advance more rapidly than others. If you purchase in any of our subdivisions you get the benefit of our song and successful experience. Our aim is to find property surrounded by conditions that will give it a natural increase in value, if you will use the same methods in purchasing a home site or a lot for investment or speculation that you use in purchasing clothes or household goods. You will look around and see where you can do the best. WE RECOMMEND lots in WEST MORELAND PLACE, 30x140 feet, with granitoid walks, for $300 to $400 each, on payments of $10.00 cash and $5.00 per month. West Moreland Place is on West Broadway, between Thirty-third and Thirty-sixth Streets.

LINCOLN COURT, 40x150 feet, with all improvements made. Asphalt street, granitoid walks, etc., will surely be the most select residence locality of the West End. Choice of these lots $1,000. Lincoln Place is situated at Thirty-eighth and Broadway.

PEERLESS COURT, is situated between Ormsby and Wilson and Fifteenth and Sixteenth Streets, which is the center of Louisville's Industrial and Railroad Sections. These lots are $10.00 per foot, $10.00 cash and the balance $5.00 per month. It's a locality in which you can keep rented a row of cottages at 10 per cent. net.

RESERVOIR PARK AT CRESCENT HILL, our East End Addition, possesses all the advantages of a Home Place, large lots, shady avenues and first-class neighborhood for people who love the country. We have lots 50x175 feet each that we can sell at prices ranging from $200 to $1,000 each.

We would be pleased to send you plats of any of the above places, and talk over the many special advantages of each place individually. We do a General Real Estate Business, and would like to list any property you have for sale.

What They Have Been Doing
the Past Week—General
News Notes.

Division 1 of Brockton, Mass., instituted in 1863, has a membership of 335, a substantial treasury and a building valued at $18,000.

Members of Division 3 presented Treasurer Butler, one of the oldest Hibernians in Hartford, Conn., with a large size picture of himself.

Auxiliary 6 has a committee that visits the Cleveland Juvenile Court and provides for any young Catholic girls that may need assistance.

Miss Julia Riley, of Dayville, Conn., County President of the Ladies' Auxiliary, was recently presented with a diamond ring by members of the auxiliary.

Outside the religious observance the feature of the celebration of St. Patrick's day in Memphis will be the banquet for members and their invited friends.

A large number of applicants passed upon at the two preceding meetings of Division 4 of Syracuse were received into the order Friday night, March 15.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Baltimore have been assigned the place of honor on the occasion of the St. Patrick's day vespers service of the order to be held at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church.

A division was organized last week in that section of Syracuse so well known as Salina. If the people there are as Irish as they were thirty years ago there is a fertile field for one of the strongest divisions in the country.

Sixty members of the order in Rome, N. Y., have organized the Hibernian Athletic Association. Here all the divisions will turn out in a body on the morning of St. Patrick's day and approach holy communion at St. Peter's church.

There is a Ladies' Auxiliary at Brockton, Mass., that has a membership of nearly 700, and their treasury is in a healthy condition. A fine degree corps that gives splendid exhibitions whenever called upon is also one of its treasures.

This season Minneapolis is to have a baseball club representing the various divisions in the city league, and from the enthusiastic spirit with which the project has been received there is every reason to believe the team will be a strong one.

The Irish school of Gaelic conducted by Division 75 of Boston, although in existence only six months, numbers nearly a hundred pupils and is making rapid strides at every session. This school is most unique in that it is the only one in the country organized and supported by a Hibernian division.

State President Dorsey and the other officers of the board are doing great work in the Empire State. They have given the order an impetus that will show surprising results when the national body meets. New York should have the largest membership of any State in the Union.

Minneapolis Hibernians will hold a joint meeting and initiation tomorrow afternoon, at which they expect to entertain National Vice President Regan and the Minnesota State Board. Division 2 has the affair in charge and will present a programme in keeping with the occasion.

Throughout the country the divisions of the order observed with appropriate exercises the anniversary of Robert Emmet. A notable celebration was held in Duluth, when the three division and their friends were addressed by Bishop McGolrick and National Vice President Regan.

Dunkirk Hibernians will observe St. Patrick's day by devoting themselves to spiritual exercises. They will attend mass at St. Mary's and go to holy communion, and in the evening will attend the lecture for the public, for which their chaplain has secured the eloquent Father Ward, C. P.

Division 1 of Boston will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary Monday night. The exercises will include a grand concert by the renowned Boston Irish Music Club and an oration by the Hon. Joseph Dennis, ex-Assistant District Attorney. National President Cummings will preside, and Edward Riley, the only surviving charter member, will be an honored guest.

Following the initiation of fourteen candidates recently Division 11 of Lowell, Mass., threw open its doors for a "smoke talk" that was attended by 500 members and invited guests. After addressed by George Sheehan, of Boston, and Rev. Father Flynn, blank applications were distributed among those present, and later President Connolly announced that twenty-five had been returned properly filled out and signed.

Bayonne Hibernians will mark their celebration of the national holiday by breaking ground for a new hall. The building is to be of brick, will cost $35,000 to erect, and will be the most ornate in Northern New Jersey. Fronting fifty feet on Avenue C, with a depth of 100 feet, the building will be equipped with bowling alleys, billiard and pool rooms and a gymnasium. There will also be several meeting rooms and a large assembly hall occupying the upper story. There will not be a post or any obstruction in the hall.

KIND WORD.

If you have a word of cheer
That may light the pathway clear
Of a brother pilgrim here,
Let him know.

Show him you appreciate
What he does, and do not wait
Till the heavy hand of fate
Lays him low.

If your heart contains a thought
That will brighten his life lot
Then, I beg you, hide it not;
Tell him so.

Life is hard enough at best,
But the love that is expressed
Makes it seem a pathway blest
To our feet.

And the troubles that we share
Seem the easier to bear,
Sweet upon your neighbor's care
As you greet.

Rough and stony are the ways,
Dark and dreary are our days,
But another's love and praise
Make them sweet.

Wait not till your friend is dead
Ere your compliments are said,
For the spirit that has fled,
If it know.

Does not need to speed it on Our poor praise where it has gone
Love's eternal golden dawn
Is aglow.

But unto our brothers here
That poor praise is very dear,
If you've any word of cheer,
Tell him so.

The offering of the Masonic playhouse will of next week, beginning on Monday evening, will be "The Volunteer Orgylist." This is said to be a play of unusual interest, and it is promised that a capable cast will be seen with the production.

The patrons of vaudeville are promised something out of the ordinary in next week's bill at Hopkins' Theatre. It is stated that some of the best-known stars in "the continuous" will be on the programme, and that it will prove one of the star bills of the season.

Miss Maude Fealy, former leading woman with Irving, and a most interesting young actress, will be seen at Macauley's the first half of next week in "The Illusion of Beauty," a modern drawing-room comedy. Howard's successful musical comedy, "The District Leader," with a cast made up of popular metropolitan favorites, will be the offering for the last three nights. The usual matinees will be given.

The Buckingham will present another great vaudeville bill next week, including catchy music and songs. A feature will be the burlesques, which will be elaborately staged and presented with brilliant electrical effects. The company is said to be one of the best on the road.

Redmond Barry Elected.

Redmond Barry, the Solicitor General for Ireland, was returned to Parliament last Friday in the bye-election held in the North division of Tyrone, the vacancy being due to the appointment of Major Dodd, the retiring member for North Tyrone chosen by the Liberals at the regular election, to a judgeship. The majority of Barry over his opponent, Dennis Henry, the Unionist candidate, was

Record of the Most Important of the Recent Events Culled From Exchanges.

A melancholy domestic tragedy is reported from Killarney, near Waterford. Mrs. O'Brien, the wife of a well-to-do farmer, left her home and wandered to the river at Liddown. When missed search was instituted and later her body was found floating in the water.

Bishop Mangan and the clergy and parishioners of Killarney contemplated holding a bazaar to raise funds for the completion of Killarney Cathedral and to wipe off the existing debt of $10,000 on the edifice. The edifice stands today in practically the same condition it did fifty years ago.

Coroner O'Hagan held an inquest on the body of Laurence McEntegart, who was found dead in his bed at Drumaneel. After hearing the evidence of Ellen McEntegart, daughter of the deceased, Thomas Clinton and the doctor, the jury returned a verdict that death was due to heart failure.

The maritime town of Youghal, on the east coast of County Cork, was plunged into grief by the receipt of the news that four fishermen from the district had lost their lives while engaged in their perilous avocation during the evening. The unfortunate men were James and Edmund Power and Declan and William Mulcahy. The bodies of Edmund Power and the two Mulcahy's were found on the strand at Mangan's bay and that of James Power was later discovered on the Waterford shore.

Sergeant Dodd having accepted appointment under the Crown, the representation of North Tyrone became vacant. Sergeant Dodd was a member a good many years ago of what was known as the Ulster Tenant Right party, and in 1892 stood as a Home Ruler for North Antrim, being defeated in that contest, but succeeded in the same interest in defeating Denis Henry, K. C., at the last general election in North Tyrone. Sergeant Dodd is at present senior Crown Prosecutor for Dublin.

Widespread sensation has been created in Leitrim county regarding an occurrence on the Ballinaghleragh estate. It appears that a rural postman, on approaching the confines of the disturbed estate, where he was serving registered letters containing processes and ejecments, found payment of rent on the tenantry, was swooped upon by a large body of men whose faces were blackened and otherwise disguised, and the registered letters removed. The bag was then handed him and he was allowed to return.

Widespread regret prevails in Wexford at the death of Rev. J. F. Kennedy, aged thirty-three years, from diphtheria. His death was wholly unexpected, as he was ill only a few days, and the first intimation of its very great seriousness was made at the Sunday evening devotions and deeply affected the congregation. Father Kennedy was a native of New Ross, where he has hosts of friends. He exercised large but most unostentatious charity, and was beloved by the poor to whom he was most generous. He was most esteemed by the townspeople, and the schools were closed for two days out of respect to his memory.

RIVAL OUR TREES.

Australia rivals California in the matter of possessing the tallest trees in the world. The California "Big Tree"—Sequoia Wellingtonia—sometimes grows to the height of from 300 to 350 feet, with a trunk twenty-five feet or more in diameter. The tallest American tree is in the redwood—Sequoia sempervirens—which in some instances has attained the height of 400 feet or even more. In Australia the tallest trees are found in Victoria. There are records of Australian trees approximating 300 feet in height, but these are taken to be exaggerations. A writer in the Sydney Morning Herald truly enough says that the mere guessing of heights is rarely attended with even approximation to accuracy. It seems well enough established, however, that there are trees in Australia which tower upwards of 250 feet into the air. Trees have been found in Africa which fall not much short of 100 feet in height.

BLESSED SACRAMENT

Is to Christian Religion What Sun is to the Universe,
Its Center.

The Blessed Sacrament is to the Christian religion what the sun is to our universe—its center. Do away with the Blessed Sacrament and our churches speedily become lecture halls, meeting rooms and places of amusement and recreation. The Blessed Sacrament makes our churches what they are—homes of prayer and adoration. From belief in the Blessed Sacrament—the Ideal Presence—the faithful are animated by the spirit of generosity to give the rich of their abundance, the poor of their hard-earned wages—to erect and adorn beautiful Cathedrals and churches. From belief in the Blessed Sacrament the architect draws his inspiration to construct a "poem in stone" and has as great a care for the right construction of the friezes far aloft in the dizzy height where no eye sees save the All-seeing Eye, as he has in erecting the walls and the buttresses and arches that come within human ken. From belief in the Blessed Sacrament poets have sung their sweetest strains, musicians wafted forth their tenderest harmonies, artists limned their noblest creations. From belief in the Blessed Sacrament youth regards the church as the starting point in life, manhood comes back to it to gain strength and vigor in life's combat.

MEN IN CAB.

Locomotive Engineers Increasing Four Thousand Per Year.

Average Life of Man at the Throttle Is Surprisingly Short.

The Limit of Human Endurance Has Been Reached by Firemen.

BROTHERHOOD FIFTY-FOUR THOUSAND

There are fifty-four thousand locomotive engineers in the United States, Canada and Mexico, who stand together in a single Brotherhood. They compose perhaps the most respected, dignified and effective labor organization in the world. An Iowa man, Warren Sanford Stone, is their Chief. He is forty-six years old, hearty, candid and cool, and has pulled everything from a local freight to a limited.

"What is the membership of the Brotherhood?" he was asked:

"Fifty-four thousand. We have subdivisions in all the States and Territories and also in Canada and Mexico. We are growing at the rate of four thousand engineers a year. The freight traffic in this country doubles every decade, and it requires a good many new men to meet the natural expansion of business. Three hundred and eighty-one engineers were killed on duty in the last two years. Notwithstanding our growth, we haven't enough men to supply the demands of the railroads. Information which has been carefully obtained shows us that the average life of the engineer is only ten years. In that time he either dies on duty or from natural causes or is totally disabled. The average of our members is forty-one years, yet there are engineers of seventy who are running fast trains. When you see an old man in the cab, however, you can wager your last dollar that he is delivering the goods."

"The figures I have given may need some explanation. Standing alone they seem to be incredible. It must be remembered that engineers suffer more from exposure than do any other workers. This is especially so in the West. When the front window of his cab is covered with snow or frost the only thing the engineer can do is to hang his head out of the side window. He may be running forty or fifty miles an hour, and the wind may be coming right into his face at the same velocity. Flesh and blood give way under such terrible conditions, and hundreds of engineers go to pieces every winter. Some of them recover and some don't."

"How long must a fireman serve before he gets an engine?"

"From two and a half to three years, but in the meantime he must be a man of iron and willing to work like a horse. Firemen on modern freight engines shovel from eighteen to twenty-five tons of coal each trip. The limit of human endurance has been reached with them. It is no longer a question of larger and stronger engines, but the problem is to stoke the engines already in use. It seems to me that a machine will have to do it. Two firemen are sometimes employed on a single engine, but that arrangement is hardly practical. One man works, gets overheated, sits down and takes cold. The other man, when his turn comes, has the same experience. The best figures we can get, and they cover ten years, show that only 17 per cent. of the firemen on American railroads become engineers, and that only 6 per cent. get passenger trains. Some of them, having but little stamina, give up, but more of them lose their health."

"Nowadays a fireman doesn't straighten up from the time his engine gets under way until his run is over. Furthermore, the door of the firebox on a modern engine is about face high, and the intense heat often rules the fireman's eyes. At least 15 per cent. of the firemen who serve their time fail to get engines because of defective sight. Even if the eyes can be made normal with spectacles, the fireman can not become an engineer, although he may have grown up on the road and been a steady and competent man. After he runs an engine for a while he may be permitted to wear glasses, but he is barred from certain trains and from all employment as an engineer on other lines."

"But let us get back to the fireman who has served his time. He does gayly about his business and at the end of two years is ordered to headquarters for another examination, a biennial performance which continues as long as he lives. He is compelled to know his engine and how to get it to the next station. If it breaks down and must stand, the electric dynamo which is often in the front of the cab, he must be familiar with the mechanism of airbrakes and pumps. Consequently an engineer not only runs his engine, but heats his train and frequently lights it."

"Yes'm," assented Charley. "And when night comes he returns home tired and worn out, doesn't he?"

"Yes'm," in further assent from Charley.

"Then," continued teacher, "at being night, his work being over and he being tired and worn out, what does he do?"

"That's what ma wants to know," said Charley.

WORTH TRYING.

Varnish the kitchen linoleum three times a year and it will last three times as long as it would without the coats of varnish.

A Liverpool lady had given her butcher her daily order over the telephone, and later in the day decided to change it a little and countermanded an order she had given for some liver.

Ringing up her butcher she said: "You remember that I gave you an order for a pound of liver a while ago?"

"Yes," was the reply. "Well, I find that I do not need it, and you need not send it."

Before she could put down the receiver she heard the butcher say to some one in the shop: "Take out Mrs. Blank's liver. She says she can get along without it."

Edward O'Meagher Condon Unveils Manchester Martyrs' Memorial.

Edward O'Meagher Condon, of Atchison, Kans., who last Saturday unveiled the Manchester martyrs' memorial in Tipperary, Ireland, that day occupied a position and performed a function to which, so far as we are aware, there is no parallel in history. The memorial was unveiled by a man who nearly forty years ago stood in the dock with Allen, Larkin and O'Brien, who was tried on the same evidence, identified by the same witnesses, convicted and tried and sentenced to death by the same judges, but against whom the evidence, tainted from the first, was so utterly untrustworthy that he was reprieved. Allen and the others declared solemnly that they had not intended to hurt Sergeant Brett, O'Meagher Condon, in his speech from the dock at Manchester, uttered a phrase that has become historic. "I have nothing," he said in concluding his speech, "to regret, or to take back. I can only say, 'God Save Ireland.' His companions advanced to the front of the dock and, raising their hands, repeated the cry, 'God Save Ireland.' Whenever in any part of the globe there is now an assembly of Irishmen, social or political, the proceedings usually close with the singing of 'God Save Ireland.'

WHY SHE HAS TWO

Dublin's Cathedrals For Same Form of Christian Worship.

Dublin is, with the sole exception of Salamanca, the only city which has two Cathedrals for the same form of Christian worship. Both St. Patrick's Cathedral and Christ Church Cathedral were, of course, in pre-Reformation times, Catholic churches. Christ Church Cathedral has not, however, held the same place in the affections of Irish Catholic Nationalists as St. Patrick's. Christ church has been much more prominently identified with the British and anti-Nationalist interest than St. Patrick's. It is no doubt true that Christ church was the church of St. Laurence O'Toole, and that in Christ church during the stay in Ireland of James II. services in accordance with the rites of the Catholic Church were held for the last time in any of the churches of the Irish Established Church.

The remains of the altar at which James II. assisted at mass, and the tabernacle and the candlesticks, are still preserved in the crypt of the Cathedral. But Christ church was the church of the settlers. It was founded by the Danes; it was restored by Strongbow, who is buried there; it was the scene of the coronation of the British impostor, Lambert Simnel, as Edward VI. in 1483; it was the church of the English Lord Deputy, of the unreformed Corporation of Dublin; it was the meeting place on many occasions of the Anglo-Irish Parliament; from its pulpit in a later day Dr. Dopping, the Bishop of Meath, preached the doctrine that faith should not be observed with respect to the Treaty of Limerick, and it was in a Parliament held in Christ Church Cathedral that Catholics were excluded from both Houses of the Irish Parliament.

A follower of St. Dominic, the Blessed Alvarez, originated the devotion of the "Way of the Cross" as it is now practiced by Catholics.

Alvarez, when he returned from Jerusalem to his convent in Cordova, Spain, built little chapels, in which he represented, station by station, the principal events in our Saviour's journey to Calvary. Like many other benefits that the world enjoys, the son of St. Dominic was not given credit for establishing the devotion in Western Christendom. It was not until the year 1342 that the stations began to be a regular devotional exercise, and then through the instrumentality of the Franciscan Friars Minor.

From the latter the devotion was spread all over Christendom and has been practiced more particularly during Lent.

NEED MORE CARE.

In the United States every year

80,000 more persons are killed in industrial pursuits than fall in battle and die of wounds during the four years of Civil war. We are killing twice as many every year as perished by violence in both the French and English armies during the three years of the Crimean war. There are more killed and wounded on our railroads every year than the entire losses on both sides during the Boer war.

We have enough industrial casualties every year to keep a conflict like our war with Spain going 1,000 years. Our peaceful vocations kill more people every two days than we lost in battle during the entire Spanish war.

ALL CAN AID.

It is frequently the case that a majority of the Catholic societies in this town have a sufficient surplus in their treasury from which they can easily give a portion to charity, which is often done. The suggestion has been made that we have no more deserving charity than the small churches in the suburban districts outlying Louisville. The struggling pastors of these churches certainly undergo many hardships and deprivations in making ends meet and donations, no matter how small, certainly look big in their eyes, as the necessarily small congregations can hardly support them. Societies and individuals having charity at their disposal should remember these poor

pastors and churches, thereby not only performing an act of charity

but assisting materially in spreading the faith.

STATIONS

One of the Practices of Devout Catholics During Lenten Period.

The Way of the Cross Is Humanity's Attempt to Follow Christ.

Follower of St. Dominic Organized the Devotion as Now Practiced.

HAS SPREAD ALL OVER CHRISTENDOM

One of the practices of devout Catholics during the Lenten period is to individually or collectively recite the prayers of the "Stations" or "Way of the Cross." As a rule during Lent the faithful assemble in their respective churches on Friday evenings to practice this devotion. What are the stations? Why do Catholics practice this devotion? These are questions frequently asked by those not of our faith?

The Way of the Cross is humanity's attempt to follow Christ in his journey from the court of Pilate to his crucifixion and final consignment to the tomb. The Catholic church is poor indeed that has not a representation of the "stations," whether they be in common prints, stone, clay, paintings or other devices. There are fourteen of these stations.

The first calls to mind that our Saviour was condemned by Pilate to die an ignominious death on the cross. Look at your print, oil painting or statuary and you will see Pilate washing his hands, as if he were rid of the whole matter, while Jesus is led away in bonds. Let me follow these pictures, whether he be Catholic or non-Catholic, if he be well acquainted with Biblical history he can not fail to understand the scenes depicted.

The second station shows where Christ is made to bear the cross. His first fall under the weight of the cross is depicted in the third station. Led along as a criminal to execution, he meets his mother. This is shown in the fourth station. In station five we find an example of charity that is all too rare in these days. It shows us where Simon the Cyrenian, helps our Saviour to carry his cross. Then Veronica offers her kerchief to our Lord to wipe the sweat and blood from his holy face. In return the imprint of his blessed countenance is left upon the cloth. At the seventh station Jesus falls the second time beneath the weight of the cross, and at the eighth we see him telling the women of Jerusalem, "Weep not for me, but for your children." At station nine we see him fall the third time.

The real agony of the journey to Calvary begins when Jesus is stripped of his garments, as shown us in the tenth station. Modestly personified was the Son of God, yet his enemies bared him to the world. Station eleven shows us the crucifixion, and twelve depicts his death. We see him taken down from the cross in thirteen and in fourteen he is consigned to the tomb.

A follower of St. Dominic, the Blessed Alvarez, originated the devotion of the "Way of the Cross" as it is now practiced by Catholics. Alvarez, when he returned from Jerusalem to his convent in Cordova, Spain, built little chapels, in which he represented, station by station, the principal events in our Saviour's journey to Calvary. Like many other benefits that the world enjoys, the son of St. Dominic was not given credit for establishing the devotion in Western Christendom. It was not until the year 1342 that the stations began to be a regular devotional exercise, and then through the instrumentality of the Franciscan Friars Minor.

From the latter the devotion was spread all over Christendom and has been practiced more particularly during Lent.

NEED MORE CARE.

In the United States every year

80,000 more persons are killed in industrial pursuits than fall in battle

and die of wounds during the four years of Civil war. We are killing twice as many every year as perished

by violence in both the French and English armies during the three years of the Crimean war. There are more killed and wounded on our railroads every year than the entire losses on both sides during the Boer war. We have enough industrial casualties every year to keep a conflict like our war with Spain going

1,000 years. Our peaceful vocations kill more people every two days

JAMES HOBAN WAS THE ARCHITECT

Matters of interest to Catholics, and illuminating to the country at large, are continually being brought to light by the indefatigable efforts of Martin L. J. Griffin. In a recent number of his "American Catholic Historical Researches" he gives the history of the building of the White House at Washington by James Hoban, an Irishman and a Catholic. Griffin says: "Not only were Catholics—L'Enfant the Frenchman, and Dermott the Irishman—the planners of the Federal City of Washington, but a Catholic, James Hoban, a native of Ireland, was the architect and builder of the President's Palace, as it was first called, the President's House as later designated, but better known as the White House."

Hoban was born in Kilkenny, Ireland, in 1758. When only twenty-two years old he won a medal from the Dublin Society for "drawings of brackets, stairs, roof, etc." It is now in possession of his grandson, James Hoban, Esq., of Washington. He came to this country after the revolution, and soon became known as an architect and builder.

"When, in 1791, Washington visited South Carolina," writes Griffin, "Col. Laurens and others recommended to him the abilities as an architect and the executive worth of James Hoban, the Kilkenny Irishman, who had since his arrival added to the growth and adornment of the city and neighborhood by the exercise of that skill and ingenuity which the new country so much needed. Hoban went to Washington City and submitted to the Commissioners a plan for the President's Palace. This plan was accepted immediately and without hesitation after a view of the drawings which were submitted.

"Hoban's plan of the President's Palace being adopted, the selection of the site on which to erect it required the personal attention of Washington himself. So on August 2, 1792, the Commissioners and President Washington "viewed the ground, particularly at the place for the palace. It has given him considerable trouble and difficulty to fix his mind," wrote the Commissioners. Hoban's design of the President's House contemplated a central building with wings. The central portion was executed according to his designs and under his supervision (we are told) he received 300 guineas a year for his services)—both before and after the damage by the British in 1814. The north portico was not completed until 1820, and then according to Hoban's plan. Its popular name of the White House is due to his thought of painting the brownstone fronting and exterior walls to conceal the discoloration by smoke and fire.

"We are somewhat shocked to learn that Hoban was a Free Mason, but it appears that many Catholics were Masons in those days. Says Griffin: "Catholics must nowadays be horrified at Hoban or other professing Catholics being at one time members of the Masonic order. Rev. Joseph Grange, a French priest of Philadelphia who died of the yellow fever September 1, 1793, was a member of LaAmenite Lodge, chartered May 20, 1797, and disbanded in 1823. In 1820 Rev. Thomas D. de Silva, of St. Mary's church, Philadelphia, entered Lodge 153, but made no further progress, though he had on his arrival, dictated from Portugal, been constituted a Mason as a brother."

"We find further from Griffin's chronicle that Cornelius McDermott Roe, Patrick McDermott Roe and John Delahunt had the contract for all the brick and stone work on the President's house for one season, and that John Kearney did all the plastering on the Capitol.

"Thus far in our investigations we have found that a Catholic was one of the Commissioners; that two Catholics planned the city; that a Catholic designed and built the President's Palace, and also superintended the erection of the Capitol, which three Catholics contracted to build, and another did the plastering, while Patrick Whalen dug the canal. Surely Irish Catholics seem to have had a goodly share in the foundation of the Capitol City."

Hoban died on December 9, 1831, and was buried in St. Patrick's cemetery. In May, 1863, his grandson and namesake, James Hoban, Esq., purchased a lot in Mount Olivet cemetery, near Washington, and the remains of James Hoban and others of the family were removed thereto.

AARON KOHN.

We are justly proud of the position of importance to which Louisville has attained in the commercial world, and no business or profession has done more toward her advancement than that of the law. Prominent among our leading attorneys stands the well known subject of our sketch. Hon. Aaron Kohn, whose offices are located in the Commercial building, northeast corner of Fourth and Main streets. Aaron Kohn has a legion of friends and a large and substantial clientele. His position among the attorneys of the city and State is a leading one, as he commands the patronage of numbers of our best citizens. He投s his energies into his work, and his clients are always sure they will receive "all that's coming to them" and plenty more for good measure.

SAINT PATRICK'S DREAM

Gray dawns the morn on St. Patrick's hill,
Slowly the mist-clouds lift and fade,
Till silvery sparkles every rill,
And diamonds gem each dew-decked glade.

'Neath the bleak, mountainous heath,
The sheepherd's slave, in slumber deep,
Lay wrapped in calm and welcome rest,
Weary from tending Milcho's sheep.

Benignly sweet his gentle face;
He dreams a glorious sight to see—
Throughout the land a Christian race
Fights for their faith triumphantly.

No longer Druidism shows
A sacrificial altar-stone,
And human blood no longer flows
In homage to an idol's throne.

And pagan fires throughout the land,
In groves of oak no longer burned,
For Erin's sons on every hand
By faith each day to Christ are turned.

From visions high Patrick wakes
By Donegal's bleak hill-side moors;
At God's behest his footstep takes To Martin, Holy Saint of Tours.

And then in time Christ's Vicar's hand
Blessed him in consecrated right,
And bade him back to Erin's Land,
Bearing the message of God's Light.

There daily preached that the Son,
True God, was born of Virgin Maid,
And daily holy souls he won,
That late in pagan paths had strayed.

Till standing on Croagh Patrick's crest,
His eyes with light celestial shone,
For Erin's sons at his behest
Had crushed the Pagan Idol's throne.

Behold! the people of his dreams
Around him kneel in faith to pray.
He tells them—"Erin of the Streams"—
That faith shall hold for eye and ay.

And now we celebrate again
Saint Patrick's day. Now every Gael
At home, abroad, or on the main,
Will cry: "God bless old Gran-Uaile!"

The Isle St. Patrick blessed of yore,
The land his footsteps oft have trod,
To spread the faith from shore to shore,
And teach its sons the ways of God.

And as he taught us lovingly
His sons to be, all else above,
For Patrick let our motto be—
"Our God, our faith, our land we love."

—Florence McCarthy O'Mahony.

VERDURE

That Charms All Eyes in the Rural Districts of Ireland.

A traveler in Ireland says that of course he knew that Ireland was called the "Emerald Isle" because of its greenness, but it had never entered his imagination that there was anywhere in the world such a verdure as charms all eyes in the rural districts of Ireland. The slopes the knolls, the dells, fields of young grain, over which the breezes creep like playful spirits of the beautiful; the pastures dotted with white sheep of the purest wool; the hillsides, rising up into mist-shrouded mountains, are all covered with thick carpets of smooth, velvet green.

The same traveler says that Ireland can also be called the Flowery Isle. There is not a spot in the land, he thinks, where Nature can find an excuse for putting a flower but she has put one. Not only in the gardens and in the meadows but upon the very walls and crags of the sea, from the great blooming rhododendrons down to the smallest flower that modestly peeps forth from its grassy cover.

The Irish furze, so rich a yellow, covers all places that might otherwise be barren; the silkworm delights everywhere from thousands of trees to drop into its web of gold; the blooming hawthorn, with its sweet scent of pink, and especially the white, adorns the lawns and gardens; wild flowers of every hue and variety clamber to hide the harshness of the moral supports; the battling cliffs of the North Sea are fringed and softened with lovely flowers; and if you kneel anywhere on the yielding, velvet carpet, you will find little, well-nigh invisible flowers—red, white, blue and yellow—wrought into the very wool and texture. Ireland ought to be called the Beautiful Isle. The spirit of the beautiful hovers over and touches to living loveliness every point.

ROBERT W. BINGHAM.

Among the enterprising and reliable attorneys of Louisville none bear more deservedly the enviable reputation for integrity and honest dealing than Robert W. Bingham, located in the Louisville Trust building, Fifth and Market streets. It is a well known fact that no lawyer devotes more time to the interests of his clients, regardless of how unimportant the case may be, than does Mr. Bingham. He has shown himself to be a man of great ability and unswerving integrity, and his growing practice and increasing popularity attest the fact of the public's recognition of his worth. Mr. Bingham is our present efficient County Attorney, which position he fills to the entire satisfaction of all classes of citizens.

CARRYING CAPACITY.

A camel can easily carry a weight of one thousand pounds on its back, about four times as much as a horse can carry. The camel begins work at the age of four and is useful for half a century. The horse, as a rule, is nearly played out at the age of fifteen.

IRISH BRAIN

Developed the Interurban Trolley System That Gridironed the Country.

Hugh McGowan Drove the Old Mule Car in Kansas City.

He Conceived the Idea of the First Terminal Station Erected.

FROM POOR MAN TO MILLIONAIRE

The Middle West has been gridironed with interurban trolley lines which the railroads in passenger traffic and give the inhabitants a cheap, fast express and freight service such as the East has never known. Indianapolis is the center of the trolley traffic. Six years ago that city was the terminus of one interurban line, eleven miles long. Today it is the terminus of a dozen or more systems, with a total trackage of 782 miles. Every few weeks there's an addition of ten or twenty miles to the existing mileage and this does not include the city car lines. None of the local cars use the terminal station, which has nine tracks under its big shed and is just like a sure-enough railway depot, with the exception of the smoke and noise and gas and confusion and a few more of the things that make modern train travel a sort of torture till you get started.

More than 200 cars—each constituting a train—enter and depart from this terminal station every twenty-four hours, and during the last year about 5,000,000 passengers have been landed or loaded there. There is a sleeping car and dining car service and the trains travel at the rate of forty miles an hour. There is also a freight service. The passenger cars are of a better style than the best-cared-for steam road cars, finished and furnished à la Pullman.

The farmer has been made over by the trolley car. Every morning express cars carry into the large towns and cities the garden produce that would have rotted in the ground under the old system, and these cars come right to the door. It's no matter of hitching up the team to drive a mile or five to the railroad station, but of simply going over to the little platform by the track and there piling the boxes and barrels to be sent out.

The brains which developed this interurban trolley system are in the head of Hugh J. McGowan, who used to drive a fifteen-foot mule car, up and down the hills of Kansas City, and afterwards was a policeman there. Today he is a multi-millionaire. He is a smart, handsome Irishman, who stepped from the police force to the asphalt business, then into gas, and finally into the business of consolidating corporations. It was for that purpose that he went to Indianapolis in 1899 and effected a trolley consolidation. Later he did the same thing in Cincinnati, and between the two cities he has made himself the possessor of several millions. He is President of six or eight trolley companies.

He conceived the idea of the terminal station, and superintended the purchase of the first plot of ground in the business center of the city on which the new structure now stands.

He bought right of way with the same freedom that some men buy five-cent cigars. He saw that the Ohio trolley lines were suffering from having laid their tracks on public highways, so he went about it just as the steam railroads do, and nearly every line entering the city has a private right of way 100 feet wide.

On these heavy tracks were laid and ballasted as carefully as the best in the country, so that now it is as solid as a billiard table to ride on along the older lines.

SQUIRE JOHN ADAMS.

It is not the intention of the Kentucky Irish American in this issue to slight any man or corporation who figures prominently in the up-building of Louisville. In the list of individuals we have named are to be found men who have given of their means and brains unsparingly in furthering the city's welfare. No one can be more prominently mentioned in this connection than John M. Adams, best known as "Squire," the present efficient County Assessor. And as long as his affairs are conducted in their present commendable manner we wish for him an era of ever-increasing prestige and popularity. All who know him accord him only praise and speak in the most complimentary terms of him as an officer and as a gentleman. Surrounding by a corps of intelligent and capable deputies, he is giving the important office he holds an administration that is unsurpassed.

FLOOD TIME.

They are telling the story of a philosophical farmer on the Ohio river whose house and barn were mortgaged up to the eaves. And when one day, standing on a safe eminence, he saw the flood sweeping them away, he shook his head, heaved a sigh of relief, and calmly observed, "There goes my floating indebtedness."

PLAYS ABLY.

John B. Gleason, one of the lawyers of the Thaw counsel, has won distinction as the most expert and scientific bridge player in New York. Some who had never heard of him as a lawyer remember him as a stump speaker. His triumphs in this line made him in demand in certain districts of New York.

STEPS TAKEN

For Entertainment of State Convention of Catholic Knights.

Enthusiasm Prevails at Monthly Meeting of the Central Committee.

Will Issue Circular Address to Catholic Women of Louisville.

STANDING COMMITTEE APPOINTED

The largest and most enthusiastic meeting thus far this year of the Central Committee of the Catholic Knights of America was held last Friday night at St. Mary's Hall.
Throughout the proceedings were interesting and were enlivened by very timely talks. The chair was occupied by President McGinn, who was much pleased when several delegates appeared who had been absent from many meetings during the winter.
Branch 45 sent in the credentials of J. H. Middendorf, who was seated as a delegate.

This year the State convention of the Kentucky branches will be held in Louisville, and the subject was given much consideration. The Central Committee will, of course, be looked to for the entertainment of the delegates and visitors, and the first steps toward that end were taken. During the discussion of the subject, in which nearly every one present took part, the sentiment favored a reception for the State Council that would surpass any ever given that body in Kentucky. The undertaking is a big one and means much work, but the Central Committee feels equal to the task and will be prepared to entertain as many as five hundred. Many plans were suggested by the speakers, but nothing definite was done, all being referred to a special committee that will report in April. This committee is composed of Councilman Michael Reichert and Messrs. Patrick Holly,
Thomas Feely and William Cushing.
As soon as the programme has been perfected this committee will be expected to visit all the branches here and solicit their co-operation in carrying out the arrangements.

The committee having charge of the new ritual reported progress, and announced that they would soon be ready for its exemplification. This ritual, they say, will not only surprise the members, but will make branch meetings very interesting.
H. A. Veeneman reported that Branch
642 had secured two more members and had several applications pending.
President McGinn commended the committee that served last year and announced that all had been re-pointed for another term.

In an eloquent talk William T.
Meehan, President of Branch 23, called attention to the work being done throughout the country in upbuilding the Catholic Knights of America. In all the States where there are branches contests are being waged for the prize and trip to the national convention at Cincinnati offered by the Supreme Council. He announced his candidacy and urged all to do their utmost to keep Kentucky in the front rank. As the result of his report it was decided to address a circular letter to the Catholic wives of the city, which will explain to them the cost and benefits they will derive if their husbands and sons become members of the Catholic Knights. This letter will be prepared by Messrs. Nechan, Hill, Gobey and Schalda.

Patrick Holly, always an entertaining speaker, told of what was being done by St. Patrick's branch, into which new life was entering. He also reviewed the work being done by

President Gaudin and the Supreme Council, which was gratifying everywhere. Mr. Holly expressed himself greatly interested in the coming State convention, and was confident that it would be larger than any held heretofore.

Attention was called to the special rate now open to new members but which will soon close. Delegates were instructed to notify their branches that there was not much time remaining and ask their members to make a united effort to increase their numbers.

On Road Up.

The accompanying cut is that of Thomas E. Sheehan, Jr., the worthy and ambitious son of Thomas Sheehan, 2046 Preston street, a veteran of the civil war and now connected with the Government revenue service. Upon his graduation from college young Sheehan engaged in the railroad business and has risen step by step to his present responsible position in the traffic department of the Southern railroad. He is also prominent and popular in Catholic circles, and for some time has been the efficient Secretary of St. Philip Neri's conference of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Always obliging and courteous and never failing in his duties, his friends look for his advancement to the top of young manhood's ladder.

Bazar in April.

The women of Holy Trinity Catholic church in New Albany are making arrangements for a bazar to be held at the school hall in April. The proceeds of the affair are to be applied to a fund for the payment of sewer and street improvement assessments.

Postponed.

The regular monthly meeting of the Federation of Catholic Societies which was to have been held Thursday night at the Catholic Women's Club, has been postponed until next Thursday night, March 21, when all the members are urged to be present.

Take One Game.

The American game of baseball has taken a firm hold in Ireland, where the outlook for the sport is exceptionally good. Late advices are to the effect that a strong Irish league is being formed, in which a number of former Americans will take part.

Consistory.

Reports from Rome repeat the statement that consistory will be held shortly after Easter. It is expected that several Cardinals will then be created, but thus far there is no certainty regarding any one of the dozen names that have been mentioned in connection with the honor.

When linoleum begins to show wear, paint the surface with a good quality floor varnish and allow it a longer time to dry than would be necessary for wooden boards.

Aim to be something, do something,
get something and keep something.

MISSIONS.

Begins Tomorrow at St. Frances of Rome and Holy Name.

Missions that will last a week will begin tomorrow at 10 o'clock at Holy Name church in South Louisville and St. Frances of Rome in Clifton. The mission at Holy Name will be conducted by the eloquent Passionists, Fathers Benedict and Ambrose, and Rev. John O'Connor, the pastor, invites the people of that section to attend all the services. Three services will be held each day, two in the morning and one in the evening, when the missionary sermon will be preached.

Those two noted Franciscan missionaries, Fathers Vincent Trost and Eusebius Wagner, will have charge of the mission at St. Frances of Rome.
The daily exercises will include mass and short instruction at 5:30 o'clock, mass and sermon at 9 o'clock, devotions and instructions for the sodalities and societies at 3
in the afternoon, and in the evening
the rosary followed by the mission sermon and the benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament.

The services at both these churches will have an additional interest tomorrow from the fact that it is the feast days of St. Patrick, to whom his sons and daughters will do special honor. Being also Passion Sunday, they could not select a better time to perform their Easter duty and show their love for the true faith.

HINTS ON STYLE.

Nothing makes more attractive and altogether satisfactory kilimans than Japanese crepe in some pretty design.

The new pongees are shown in exceedingly lovely plaid and checks that are peculiarly well suited to young girls.

Lace is more fashionable than ever,
and the soft lace ties, bows and jabots are immensely becoming and extremely popular.

The draped crown, seen much in velvet this winter on the Parisian millinery, will be laid over the flat flat hats this summer.

Of the dark colors navy blue is by far the most popular for suits, although the light grays and cream ground mixtures are still way in the lead.

Box plaids are the feature of the small dress for the small girl. The little waist has a full pointed yoke, the plaids extending from this yoke
to the belt.

Colored blouse and skirt frocks
may be beautified by plaited frills, collars and cuffs of white lingerie or linen, with narrow tailored hem matching the color of the frock material.

The oblong boat shaped hat, with sides slightly upturned and trimmed with one great ostrich feather laid straight back over the middle of the crown, is a fashionable shape and much more becoming than it sounds.

There are a great many exceedingly charming and durable suitings being shown of linen combined with a little cotton, this season, and one and all they make eminently attractive shirt waist gowns.

The mushroom shape, with crown bigger and deeper than ever, is the most striking thing in millinery, and is trimmed often with two cabbage rossettes on either side of the front and a bow with trailing ends at the back.

Delightful little shirtwaist frocks
are made in fine white lingerie stuff, with front frills, collar and cuffs whose edges are buttonholed in color.
Sometimes an embroidered design is added, but the plain scalloped edge, with their lines of color, are particularly dainty.

The popularity of white and light striped flannels started by the great Paris tailors last year steadily increased with the promise of becoming greater as the season goes on. They certainly will be common, these cool and tailored looking little jacket suits, and yet everybody wants one,
so much so in fact that the cloth departments find it hard work to sat-

"QUICK MEAL" GAS RANGES

For many years the "Quick Meal" has been universally acknowledged as the best gas range in the market. The cook quickly, bake excellently and on account of their patent air burners consume less

BIG TURN OUT.

Hibernians Will Attend Exposition in a Body Monday Night.

Division 3, A. O. H., had an excellent attendance at its last meeting and the session was a busy one. All members were gratified to hear that Dan Dougherty was improving and would soon be out again. President James Coleman occupied the chair. After the reading of the proceedings of the County Board it was decided to notify the members that Division 3 would go with the others in a body to the annual communion at St. William's church at 7 o'clock on the morning of St. Patrick's day, March 17.

The special committee appointed to make preparation for a fitting observance of the anniversary of the patron saint of the order reported that arrangements had been made for a banquet at the new Clayton Hotel just opened at Third and Main, which will take place Sunday evening and to which members of the other divisions had been invited.

By unanimous vote it was decided to attend in a body the opening of the Greater Louisville Exposition next Monday night. There had been a meeting of the Hibernians at the hall of the American Legion. Secretary Morris reports that the division is securing new members right along and that there is always something doing at the meetings. All Hibernians are cordially invited to visit this division and are assured of a pleasant evening.

Tickets to Ireland.

Michael Sheehan, the wealthy Portland avenue grocer and one of the most loyal Hibernians in this city, has for many years represented the leading steamship companies plying between this country and Ireland, and during that time has arranged for the passage over of many people who intended to visit the old land. When seen the other day he said an unusually large number were arranging for trips to Dublin this year, where they will spend several weeks, and for a sum much less than it would cost them if they spent the same length of time at any of the fashionable American summer resorts. Tickets on the best steamers, which include passage and meals, can be procured for less than $100. We give this information for the benefit of any who may want to go to Ireland this year, and would advise them to have Mr. Sheehan make the arrangements for them.

IMPOSING SERVICES AT ST. PATRICK'S

Irishmen the world over ever look forward with pride and pleasure to the reoccurrence of the festival of their national saint and patron. St. Patrick's day and March 17 are phrases which strike a magnetic chord in the heart of every patriotic Irishman. Every country has its heroes and is justly proud of them, be they soldiers, saints or scholars. Is it any wonder then that the enthusiasm of Irishmen knows no bounds on March 17, which is sacred to the memory of that hero who is in himself the personification of the highest qualities and virtues of the saint, the sage and the soldier? He delivered their beautiful isle from the darkness of Paganism and made it the island of saints and scholars—the home of learning, and the pioneer of the faith throughout the world. That pre-eminent place she still proudly maintains, that unique reputation she still jealously preserves. The love and veneration of Irishmen for their national saint and apostle is growing in intensity year by year, and the light of faith which he kindled is burning more brilliantly now than when he expelled the Druids from Tara, lighted the Paschal fire on Slane and overthrew the idols on the plains of historic Westmeath.

Hence it is that the Irish men and women of Louisville will hold this year, as they have ever held, first a religious festival and reunion in honor of St. Patrick in the morning, to be followed by a grand banquet that will mark the opening of the new Clayton Hotel, where a fitting close will be given to a well spent day. In all the churches there will be services in honor of St. Patrick and in most he will be the subject of special sermons.

As is the annual custom, the services at St. Patrick's church will be on a most elaborate scale. Here the people have special claim on St. Patrick, and priest and people vie with each other in worthily celebrating the great festival. The services will begin at 10:30 o'clock with a Pontifical high mass, celebrated by the Vicar General, Rev. Father Cronin, assisted by deacon and subdeacon, and the Rev. Henry Miller, the noted and eloquent Passionist orator, will preach the sermon. Our venerable Bishop, Right Rev. William George McCloskey, will grace the occasion with his presence, as will also many of the local clergy. Not the least interesting feature will be the musical programme, which will be rendered by an enlarged choir and some of the finest talent in the city.

Tomorrow morning the Hibernians of the city will begin the celebration of the day by visiting St. William's church, where they will attend mass at 7 o'clock and receive their annual communion. They will be welcomed by Rev. Denis Murphy, and it is expected that the number present will far exceed that number present as never before. They will have no other celebration during the day, but at night there will be a banquet for the members of the order at the Clayton Hotel, when the praises of the patron saint of the Ancient Order will be told in song and story, where enthusiasm will have full scope and patriotic songs have ample fuel on which to feed. This banquet is under the auspices of Division 3, but the others are all interested and will be largely represented. The State and county officers have been invited and also the divisions. State President Butler, County President Murphy, Thomas Welsh, William T. Meahan, John J. Barry and P. T. Sullivan will respond to toasts. Hibernians are urged to come to the banquet and prove the truth of the sentiment: "They people now exiled on many a shore Shall love and rever thee till time he no more, And the ire thou hast kindled shall ever burn bright, undying its light."

Strassel-Gans Paint Company.

No business factor stands out more prominently in contributing to the advancement of Louisville as a commercial point of importance than that of the Strassel-Gans Paint Company, located at 215 West Market street. This firm is well and favorably known in the city and State, and the business has increased since its organization so that today it holds a portion of prominence in their important line. The Strassel-Gans Company are manufacturers and dealers in all kinds of paints and painters' supplies and jobbers in oils and varnishes. It is a well known fact that this firm can be relied upon for the fulfillment of all contracts, and is a concern that adds greatly to the commercial value of every community. They are worthy of our endorsement and deserving of every patronage from the people.

Benefit For Church.

Catholics of Howardstown and Nelson county are promised an interesting entertainment during Easter week, the proceeds of which will be for the benefit of St. Ann's mission church at that place. The entertainment will be under the direction of Mesdames Miles Howard and J. E. Carrico and Miss Ida Cotton. With three such competent ladies at its head there is assurance of a grand success.

DANIEL SCANLON.

Represents the Healthy Irish and Catholic Public Spirit.

The Irish race can boast of many men prominent in every State and city of this great country in politics, at the bar, in the pulpit and in mercantile life—but there is one to whom the great body of Irish-American men in these parts look to with pride in every public enterprise, and that man is Daniel Scanlon, who symbolizes in himself whatever there is of healthy Irish and Catholic spirit. Mr. Scanlon was born in County Cork, Ireland, but came to this country, when a youth, locating in Louisville and working as a moulder for the Louisville & Nashville railroad. Leaving the railroad he became a partner in the firm of Leahy & Scanlon, coal dealers, from which he retired about eight years ago to form the Scanlon Coal Company, of which he is the President. This company does an immense coal business and owns extensive mining properties in Bell county. Mr. Scanlon is also President of the Coleman Mining Company, which has valuable coal mines in this State. The other officers of the Scanlon Coal Company are Granville T. Rider, Vice President and General Manager, and William O. Bender, Secretary and Treasurer. They have now two of the largest yards in the city, filled with thousands of loads of coal from the Fox Ridge mines. Mr. Scanlon has twice visited Ireland, his wife accompanying him on his last trip some years ago. Through industry and business integrity he has become a large property-holder in this city, and is doing everything possible for Louisville's material advancement.

HOLDS ITS PLACE.

Irish Butter Makes a Record Despite Unscrupulous Competition.

It is somewhat gratifying to find that at least one article of Irish produce is capable of holding its own in face of the most unscrupulous methods of competition. Last year has been a record one in Irish dairy farming. The quantity of milk has been quite unprecedented and yet the price has been steadily maintained. There has been an increase of 10,000 tons of butter on the preceding year and while there has also been an increase in the importation of foreign and colonial butter, the Irish product averages fully $1 to $1.75 per hundred over the price of 1905. The enhanced price in spite of the increased supplies are attributed largely to the good work of Viscount Ikerrin, who in his administrative capacity in connection with the Board of Agriculture, has been active in stopping some of the English butter fakers and stirring up the English inspectors to check the selling of oleomargarine for butter. The Viscount Ikerrin is highly pleased with his year of office.

"Irish dairy work," he says, "needs careful handling in face of Danish and Russian competition. It needs the stimulating influence of government support and protection and then Irish produce will establish itself firmly in the confidence of the world. If my efforts lead to the rehabilitation in England of the good name of Irish butter, I consider a useful work for Ireland has been accomplished."

National Insurance Company.

In presenting this edition to the public the Kentucky Irish American wants to be as explicit and thorough as is consistent with its own interests and those of its constituents, and therefore we wish to call attention to the National Life and Accident Insurance Company, whose handsome offices are located in rooms 10 and 11 in the Courier-Journal building. We would recommend its policies to our host of readers especially because of the fact that they combine accident and health insurance with third life insurance policies, thus not only protecting a man's family in case of his death, but also protecting his earning capacity in the event of loss of life by accident or disease. This company has established an enviable reputation for the prompt payment of claims, as many of our citizens can testify. Mr. W. A. Johnson is manager of the local branch office, and is ably assisted by his brother, E. J. Johnson, who is the district manager. And so long as the affairs of the National are conducted in their present commendable manner we wish this worthy institution an era of ever increasing success and prosperity.

Rushes the blood thro' the veins at the sound of it; Youth comes with one round of it; Quick heart-pulsations keep time to the ring of it—Who could sit by and not venture one fling of it? Rhythmic ripples of harmony hum from it; Passionate wavelets of melody come from it; Happiness fills every note in the laugh of it—Opens your heart with desire for one quaff of it. Science or Wisdom ne'er yet had the pow'r of it; Lives have been happier made by one hour of it; Wholesome and pure is the joy that is made by it; Sorrows will lighten and trouble will fade by it.

Faster the spell-binding witchery flows from it; Deeper and deeper the rapture that glows from it; Clouds disappear, sunshine comes with the trill of it—Drink of the pleasure, you'll ne'er get your fill of it.

That Mark Irish History From the Days of St. Patrick.

Speakers at exercises often refer off-hand to dates marking events in Irish history and seldom give two dates alike for one certain event. William J. Minhan in the Catholic Union and Times has compiled the following data:

432—Conversion of the Irish by St. Patrick.
797—First invasion of Ireland by the Danes.
1014—Battle of Clontarf; defeat of the Northmen.
1169—Invasion of Ireland by Strongbow.
1172—Henry VII. of England landed in Ireland.
1315—Edward Bruce invited by Irish chiefs; lands at Carrickfergus.
1316—Edward Bruce crowned King of Ireland.
1318—Edward Bruce defeated and killed in battle at Dunndalk.
1393—Rebellion in Ireland.
1394—Richard II. arrived at Dublin. Irish chiefs submit.
1465—“Poll act;” price put on head of certain Irishmen.

1494—“Poyning's act;” all laws relating to Ireland to be first approved by English Council.

1534—Attempt to introduce the “Reformation” into Ireland.
1569—Rebellion by the Butlers—suppressed.

1574—Rebellion led by O'Neill. The Earl of Essex fails to quell it.

1601—Arrival of Spanish force to aid O'Neill and O'Donnell; defeated and captured.

1607—“Flight of the Earls”—O'Neill and O'Donnell.

1612—Confiscation of Ulster by James I.

1646—Battle of Benburb; defeat of the English by Owen Roe O'Neill.

1649—The Catholic Confederation.

1649—Cromwell's ruthless campaign of slaughter and murder.

1659—King James II. lands at Kinsale.

1690—Battle of the Boyne; defeat of King James.

1691—Gallant defense of Limerick; capitulation.

1691—Battle of Aughrim. St. Ruth, French General in command, killed; Irish defeated.

1699—Confiscation of Irish estates for English adventurers.

1745—Battle of Fontenoy; was largely won by the valor of the Irish Brigade.

1782—Dungannon convention.

1798—Rebellion of 1798.

1801—First Irish Parliament. Act of Union.

1801—Emmet's abortive attempt at an uprising.

1829—Catholic emancipation. The Clare election.

1841—Agitation for “Repeal of the Union.”

1843—The Irish State trials.

1847—The famine. Death of O'Connell.

1867—Fenian uprising.

1870—The “home rule” agitation.

1879—The Land League, Parnell.

1886—Gladstone's home rule bill for Ireland.

1900—Fall of Parnell.

1903—Land purchase act passed.

HIS HERDITARY FOE.

An Irishman, a Scotchman and an Englishman were once in search of work. On coming to a field of turnips they took several. For this they were dragged before the Judge, who before sentencing each to twelve lashes on the bare back agreed to confer a favor according to each requested. The Englishman asked the favor of his overcoat; the Scotchman his own, as well as that of the Englishman, whilst the Irishman casting a sly glance at the Judge said: “May it please your Honor, I would just like the Englishman across my back.”

them—there came a timid knock at the door. In response to the invitation to enter, a brown-cowled figure slipped inside and announced in low tones that it was the hour for vespers—if we cared to come. We arose at once and followed him into a hall. With crossed hands and bowed head we went in front; silently we came after. At the top of the staircase was a life-size statue of the Virgin and Child. Our guide went down the long, bare stairs to the hall below, and across this to the cloister. Before opening the door, he turned toward us and placed his fingers upon his lips, and then led us on. We passed through the grape-like cloister to the latticed porch, and down this the loose sandals of our guide clattered, himself a shadow among shadows, for the night had almost come. At last we stopped before a door; our guide opened it and beckoned us to follow. We had come to the monk's chapel. It was a spacious room, so high that the roof could be seen, but dimly. Some plain wooden benches stood at one side, and to these we were directed. In front of us, slightly to our left, was the altar, with its tapers glowing steadily, and its sacred symbols. The brotherhood had gathered in the main body of the chapel, and soon services began. It is entirely impossible to transcribe on paper the solemnity and grave pomp of these exercises. The prayers, responses and chants are all said in Latin; an organ enhances and swells the harmony, and one can easily imagine himself in medieval France, for the entire place has an old-world atmosphere.

One of the most interesting things about the monastery is “God's Acre,” in the rear of the abbey, a small graveyard enclosed by a high brick wall. Here repose the abbey's dead, about eighty in all. The graves are made in rows, symmetrically; over each the ivy clammers; otherwise the ground is bare. A small, black iron cross marks each resting place. On this cross in white letters may be seen the brother's name and the day he died. And in this place, strange though it may seem, lie the mortal remains of one woman. A little to one side a plain, marble shaft uprises, and on it are graven the words: “Ann Miles, Benefactress.” The guest-master, who was acting as the guide, explained that this lady came to the abbey's relief when it was in sore financial straits, and the only reward she asked was that she be buried in the monks' graveyard.

There are about eighty members of the order at Gethsemane now. They are mainly French and Irish, with only one or two native-born Americans. Silently they come and go—moving shadows in a place of calm. When they meet they salute each other by bending the head, but no word is spoken. They may not speak except by permission of the superior. To this rule there is no exception.

There is an impression current throughout the country that each day the monks take a shovelful of dirt out of their graves. It is difficult to imagine how this absurd superstition received foundation—perhaps from the statement of some sensational writer in years gone by. But this is not now, nor has it ever been, a custom of the order. When the hour comes for him to die, a cross of ashes is made upon the floor, and the stricken brother is stretched upon it. In this way he dies as his Lord did upon the cross. Then his cassock is wrapped about him, and unconcerned his remains are laid to rest with the brothers who have gone before.
